The oxidation state, sometimes referred to as oxidation number, describes the degree of oxidation (loss of electrons) of an atom in a chemical compound. Conceptually, the oxidation state, which may be positive, negative or zero, is the hypothetical charge that an atom would have if all bonds to atoms of different elements were 100% ionic, with no covalent component.

2 It is important to note that the balancing of an equation is accomplished by placing numbers in front of the proper atoms or molecules and not as subscripts. In an equation, all chemical species appear as correct formula units. The addition (or change) of a subscript changes the meaning of the formula unit and of the equation.
